

A Perspective of the Thai Experience with Domestic Financial Architecture, Macroeconomic Volatility, and Financial Institutions

Piriya Pholphirul* and Pakorn Vichyanond

This report is part of the project “International Financial Architecture, Macroeconomic Volatility, and Institutions: The Developing World Experience,” arranged by the Center for the Study of State and Society (CEDES) and the International Development Research Centre (IDRC). The authors are indebted to Dr. Chalongphob Sussangkarn for his invaluable advice. The authors alone, not TDRI, CEDES, or IDRC, are responsible for all the interpretations in this report.
